SGT. DAVIS MADERE

REGION UPDATE

By Sgt. Davis Madere

Salutations from Region 9. Agents from the region have been busy since our last issue. This year's alligator season brought with it a multitude of violations. Agents from both districts made several cases ranging from taking alligators without a license to taking alligators during closed season to violating commission rules and regulations for selling gator tags. Nearly sixty alligators were seized in connection with these cases. Checks cut from the sale of the gators totaled near the ten thousand dollar mark.

On the heels of working alligators came the teal season. Many quality cases were made on our Wildlife Management Areas as well as on private lands. Agents in Lafourche Parish came upon a case working teal hunters in which twenty violations were found.

Several agents took part in the annual St. Mary Parish Shriners Wild Game Cook Off. Proceeds from the event go to cancer patients and burn victims. Agents cooked a venison chili that from all accounts was a big hit. Agents participating were Lt. Les Rulf, Sgt. Ross Mire, Sr. Agents Scott Dupre and David Boudreaux, and Agent David Ducote. Good job fellas and thanks for all the hard work!

In family news, Sr. Agent Scott Dupre's wife, Andrea, gave birth to a healthy baby boy named Evan Scott. Congratulations to Scott and Andrea.

Another hunting season is now upon us and with it the hopes of cooler temperatures and successful trips. Don't forget to keep safety first while in the field. Until next issue, y'all be good

Better Lucky Than Good

By Sgt. Davis Madere

Most agents that work in coastal Louisiana will agree that one of the most common complaints from fishermen is theft of crab traps. These complaints are worked diligently. However, in my opinion it's one of the hardest cases to make. The theft normally takes place in an open body of water where the thief can keep a look out from all directions. Usually the determining factor in apprehending a crab trap thief is a good informant who can tell you when and where about the theft will take place. On one occasion, I lucked out and got some good information thanks to a slip up by the thief and quick thinking by the victim.

One afternoon I was on patrol with Sr. Agent Ed Ridgel and received a call from a commercial crabber who stated that while running his traps in Lac DesAllemands he noticed that several of his traps had new tags on them with someone else's license number.

He had removed a new tag from one of his traps and the next time he ran his traps found the other double tagged traps to be missing. You talk about luck! I had the potential violator's license number and with a quick inquiry through communications I had his name and address.

Ed and I celebrated our good fortune and figured we'd take a shot in the dark and head over to the guy's house and maybe find the traps. Upon arriving at the residence, sure enough, we observed, in plain view, traps (matching the description of our complainant's traps) in the subject's back yard along with several other traps. We contacted Sr. Agents Jamie Folse and Dean Aucoin to assist and when they arrived, I knocked on the door and made contact with the subject. After a brief discussion, it was found that he had taken the traps from Lac DesAllemands. Upon inspection of the traps he was found to be in possession of six of the informant's traps as well as eight other traps belonging to three other commercial fishermen. We arrested the subject and seized and total of fourteen stolen traps.

As I mentioned before, theft of crab traps is a serious problem. I don't claim to have an open window to the human psyche, but I think these thieves consider it a victimless crime. I guess it makes it easy for them to steal because they can't see the person they're stealing from or maybe because they aren't going onto someone else's property to commit the crime. At about $25 for a new trap, make no mistake, this is a serious crime and the person being stolen from is a victim. Now, I'm a realist and I know that this one particular case does not solve the ongoing problem of crab trap theft. However, it does show that with good information, good investigation, and some luck we can deter others from committing this crime.

A Week Long Can of Worms

By Sr. Agent Joe Arnaud

On Sept. 02, 2007, I was working with Captain Sammy Martin on a Federal Fish patrol when I received the complaint. It was one of those complaints that an Agent will receive and you begin to wonder if it is true or not.

The complaint was that fisherman were taking alligators from the wrong area and tagging

Sgt. Richard Purvis and Sr. Agent Joe Arnaud with seized alligators.

So, I call Sgt. Richard Purvis that night and advised him that Lt. Chuck Comeaux had authorized a schedule change to work the complaint. The only thing was that we, as Agents, had to get to the area before the fisherman does. So, Richard and I met at 0430 hours to organize a plan. Once a plan was in place, we unloaded our four-wheelers and traveled to the area. After an hour and a half, of slapping mosquitoes, and wondering if we were wasting our time or not, we observed a tractor cross the levee, exactly where the complainant advised that the subjects would. I looked at Richard and advised him that this is it.

As we sat patiently, we heard shots coming from the area that the subjects had gone. At 0820 hours, we observed the tractor pulling a trailer cross the levee. Richard and I approached the subjects to conduct a license check.

The first thing I observed once we had the tractor stopped was that they were in possession of ten alligators and none were tagged. I began thinking that this was a good complaint.

This was just the beginning of a week long can of worms that Richard and I had opened. The two subjects were found to be in possession of 10 untagged alligators, with one fisherman's license and with another fisherman's alligator tags. For the next week we tracked down four other alligator fisherman and three different alligator dealers to seize tags, alligators and alligator hides. The final conclusion was 20 counts of failure to tag alligator upon taking and 104 counts of take alligator from other than approved area. Agents also seized 36 alligators that were sold for $6518.57.
