Tried and Convicted by Their Faces

By Sgt. Cliff Ortis

One cold night in January my partner Agent Marbury and I were patrolling near an area that we had gotten numerous complaints in. It was nearing midnight and I noticed a light where I had never seen one before. Agent Marbury and I decided to check it out so we began approaching it with our lights out. It seemed like it had been raining forever, so it was nearly a swamp. We were traveling next to a canal that had some bad washouts along the edge and I was worried that I might wind up sliding in this canal. It was very dark that night and I was having trouble seeing and constantly worrying about the washouts. My partner got out of the truck and began walking along the canal road ahead of my unit spotting the washouts for me as I slowly followed keeping my right front tire in line with his body as he walked. We must have traveled like this for a mile or so and we began hearing shots from the location of the lights in the field which we had determined the source to be an ATV. As we got closer we could see a spotlight shine back and forth a few times so we knew we were on to something good. It looked as though we were close enough so we began walking on foot and we noticed the ATV turn and head toward a secluded camp. We had just missed them there but we knew that we'd get them at the camp.

Again we began walking toward the camp with 40 pounds of mud connected to each of our boots. As we approached the camp, a generator was running and we were in no danger of being heard. We began to see several subjects gathered around a campfire and having a good ole time; we could also see a big doe deer swinging in the wind right next to the action. I decided to walk right up to the campfire. Nobody noticed us until we were 10 feet away and some didn't see us until I patted them on the back smiled and said, "What's happening fellas". Well a picture is worth a thousand words and I will probably work the rest of my career and never see expressions like I saw that night on the faces of these men. After my greeting, I entertained them with a solo of Miranda. I then walked over to the deer, ran my hand in the freshly gutted cavity and found it too warm at just past midnight. The gun and light were still on the freshly mudded ATV and of course blood on the front rack and tires. They wasted no time in telling us the whole night's activities. Two men went to jail and two guns, an ATV and a light were seized.
